

28 Game of Cards - Mr Carter

As I walked out - one fine - May morn - ing to view the sweet fields and to take the fresh air, there I - esp - ied a - sweet, pret - ty maid - en as she was a - walk - ing all on the high - way.

1
As I walked out one fine May morning
to view the sweet fields and to take the fresh air,
there I espied a sweet pretty maiden
as she was a-walking all on the highway.

I said, 'Pretty maid, Oh where are you going;
say where are you going so early this morn?'
She said, 'Young man I am going to Lisbourne that sweet pleasant place wherein I was born.'

3
I said, 'Pretty maid, may I go with you,
and may I walk alongside of thee?'
'Oh yes, young man, you may go with me.
Oh yes, you may walk alongside of me.'

4
We had not been walking scarce half an hour before acquainted, acquainted we came,
and she sat down and I sat down by her.
Says she, 'I will show you a sweet pleasant game.'

I said, 'My dear, I'm a stranger to all gaming,
but along with you I'm quite willing to learn.'
'Now the game that we play shall be as All Fours,
at that I can beat you three to your one.'

Then she cut the cards, it was my turn to deal them;
I dealt her the King and the Ace and the Dame.
She led off her Ace and she stole my Jack from me,
and beat me, both high and low, Jack and the Game.

I took up my hat and bid her 'Good Morning,' although I was high and low, Jack and the Game.
I said, 'My dear, I'll be here tomorrow,
and then we will play the game over again.'
